OF $250 IN SUIT AS RESULT OF ACCIDENTJury Returns Verdict in Case of Laura Bianchini Against Harry W. Phipps

SUED FOR $10,000

Girl Alleged She Was Struck
By Phipps' Car As She Crossed the Road

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 15—A jury returned a verdict in civil court in the sum of $250 in favor of Miss Laura Bianchini against Harry W. Phipps, Bristol. The verdict was returned last night before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Miss Bianchini sued for $10,000 damages alleging that she was struck by the car of Phipps on the Bristol Pike, near the Bristol cemetery.

According to the testimony, three young women, including Miss Bianchini, while returning from their employment, stopped at the Bristol cemetery to visit a grave. After leaving the cemetery the three crossed the roadway and it was then that it was alleged that Phipps' car struck Miss Bianchini.

A verdict for $15,367.64 damages in favor of the plaintiff and against the garnishee was returned Tuesday in the case of Mandes Golder, his executors, administrators and assigns, against Harry J. Bogash, defendant, Philadelphia Pure Rye Whiskey Distilling Company, garnishee. The case was tried before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Trial started yesterday morning in the Bucks county civil court in the case of Dorothy R. McCoy, a minor, and Mrs. Bessie McCoy, her mother, of 1037 Park avenue, Trenton, against the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, before President Judge Hiram H. Keller.

The plaintiff brought suit some time ago for damages suffered as a result of the death of Mrs. McCoy's husband, Clarence McCoy, a Trenton painter, on October 10, 1934, three days after he had been struck in the head with a telephone pole while riding in a truck along the River road between Lumberville and Point Pleasant.

McCoy died in a Trenton hospital from a fractured skull. He was riding in a truck operated by Robert Harle on the afternoon of the accident. State Highway Patrolman Jacoby, of the Doylestown sub-station, investigated. He found that McCoy was hit in the head with a pole while riding in the rear of the Harle truck.

Members of the jury and the Court left shortly before noon to view the pole alleged to have caused the accident.

The statement of claim filed in the case by the plaintiffs, allege that the telephone company maintained the pole in a negligent manner and that it was in a leaning condition.

The jury was later withdrawn and the case settled by agreement of counsel.

Trial started before noon yesterday in the case of William N. Ottinger, receiver of the Southwestern National Bank, a corporation, against The Enterprise Wall Paper Manufacturing Company, a corporation. Judge Boyer is presiding at this trial.

The case of E. Ewing Shuttelworth against Frank C. LaRue (appeal from Justice of the Peace), was marked settled today.

The case of Henri LaRose, against John Wildonger, has been marked discontinued.

A verdict for the defendant in the case of Harold Malamut, by his next friend and parents, Benjamin Malamut, against Henry M. Hobson (trespass), was returned yesterday. The plaintiff sued to recover damages for injuries sustained in an automobile accident on the Lincoln Highway near the Langhorne Speedway.

Medical Societies Hold
A Joint Institute

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 15—One of the series of six institutes to be conducted for physicians of Bucks County Medical Society and Montgomery County Medical Society, was held yesterday in conjunction with a joint meeting of the two groups at the Fountain House. This is the first of the institutes to be held in this county. There will be three pediatric and three obstetrical institutes.

The speakers yesterday at the pediatric institute included: Dr. Ralph M. Tyson, whose subject was "Infant Feeding"; Dr. W. H. Crawford, "The Health Appraisal of the Well Child"; Dr. Pasquale Luchesi, "Present-Day Conception of Immunology As Applied to Children."

Some of the addresses were illustrated with lantern slides. The large number of physicians listened most attentively to the helpful addresses.

The institutes are being conducted under auspices of the State Department of Health.

Dr. H. Doyle Webb, Bristol, president of the Bucks County Society, occupied the chair. The session followed dinner which was served at noon.

Waterway Delegates
Given Whistle Salute

Whistling a salute to the delegates of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association as they went up the Delaware river, yesterday afternoon, en route to Trenton where they convene today, whistles of the various industries and the fire siren screeched their salute. Crowds of residents here, attracted by the blowing of the whistles, swamped the Courier office and police headquarters with telephone calls.

"Why are the whistles blowing?" was the question asked.

The delegates aboard the steamer Dorothy Bradford, Boston, steamed up the river escorted by the U. S. Engineers boat, Bedett, and the yacht "Consort the Fourth."

The Bradford was followed by the Philadelphia fire boat, John Wanamaker.

Flags were generously displayed along Bristol's river front and spectators were grouped along the shore.

SANTA OLALLA, Spain, Oct. 15—They told us to drive very fast over the stretch of road the Reds were shelling, so we put on speed and our little cinnamon bear of a Burgos chauffeur crouched over the wheel with his flop ears standing straight out. We thought they had told us to turn left at the next pair of farmhouses, but when we did one Legionnaire came to the door and we could see behind him a whole troop of them crouching on the floor and they yelled at us to "Get the h— out of here, you're attracting the enemy fire."

So there we were, had to turn around, and it seemed as though it took ages, and then we drove across the road to the opposite farmhouse where four automobiles and trucks were smashed together in the courtyard by shells so badly that you couldn't tell where one began and the other left off. The second we pulled up, Colonel Delgado came out as fast as a Colonel can come without losing dignity and in language more polite but no less emphatic than the Legionnaire's told us to get away quickly.

Not that anybody cared particularly for our hides, but our car made just the sort of attractive movement that artillery officers gazing through twelve-power binoculars need to direct their fire.

We got out and that night we drove all the way to France, taking eleven and a half hours of uninterrupted travel, filed our stories, turned around and now we are here again, for in the meanwhile the front had moved up. I suppose of all the wrecked, plundered, looted and sacked towns I have seen in this war, Santa Olalla is the worst up to date, barring of course Irun which was not just wrecked, but utterly destroyed and burned.

PUTTING THE SPOTLIGHT ON RELIEF

(New York American, October 14, 1936)

Governor Landon took the relief problem out of the political shadows in which it has lurked for more than three years, and bared it for public inspection before his Cleveland audience.

The nation has been reluctant to listen to plain talk about relief. It has put up billions for relief purposes. It has wanted to believe it has fulfilled its obligation to the distressed by putting up the money.

Governor Landon has turned the spotlight on the fact that the people DO NOT KNOW WHAT THEY ARE GETTING FOR THEIR MONEY.

He has done more than that.

He has revealed the startling fact that the billions the nation has willingly made AVAILABLE for relief have not been SPENT for relief.

Governor Landon tells where the money has gone in a sentence:

"Money intended for the relief of human suffering is being diverted to the building up of a shameless political machine."

The people need only look about their own communities to know this is true.

When they compare the miserable dribble of relief that trickles into the hands of the destitute with the fat jobs held by political parasites infesting every community, they have their own proof of what Governor Landon said in Cleveland. Listen to Governor Landon again:

"The Administration is spending in the name of relief at an annual rate of a billion and a half MORE THAN IN 1934. And yet, less than two weeks ago in Pittsburgh the President told us that we have had a more rapid recovery than even he had anticipated."

If there HAS been recovery, the NEED for relief must have been LESSENED.

If the New Deal has promoted the degree of recovery IT CLAIMS, it should have REDUCED relief expenditures correspondingly.

Instead, it is spending more than ever before.

Despite the recovery claimed, despite the billions spent, we still have eleven millions unemployed, and we still have in excess of twenty millions in need of relief.

What can this mean, except that:

The New Deal is spending relief money for something else?

The bulk of the money is not going to the HUNGRY. It is going to the POLITICALLY USEFUL.

Can there be any other answer, in an election year, with the Roosevelt Administration pouring MORE money instead of LESS into pretended channels of relief?

EXONERATE DRIVER OF
BLAME IN MAN'S DEATHCoroner's Jury Says Harvey
Andrews Could Not Have Avoided Striking Victim

HEAR SOME WITNESSES

Harvey Andrews, New Jersey truck driver, whose machine struck and killed Joseph Tranotti on Bristol Pike on October 1st, was exonerated of all blame in the accident by a coroner's jury here yesterday. Andrews had been held in $2,000 bail waiting the action of the coroner.

The accident occurred on Bristol Pike, just a short distance over the Bristol Borough line, near the entrance to the Rohm & Haas chemical plant. Tranotti was pronounced dead upon his arrival at Harriman Hospital.

The first witness to testify yesterday was Highway Patrolman Harold Desch, South Langhorne barracks, who was called to the scene of the accident. Desch testified that when he arrived at the scene the victim had been removed to the Harriman Hospital. The patrolman also testified that the driver, Andrews, who resides in Keyport, N. J., was sober when he talked with him after the accident. No skid marks or tire marks were in evidence at the scene of the accident the officer further testified.

Deputy Coroner, Dr. James P. Lawler, was the second witness called and testified that Tranotti met his death as the result of a fractured skull. He was called to view the body at about 7:15 in the evening.

Elizabeth Andrews, who was an occupant of the truck and wife of the driver, said that she saw Tranotti as the truck approached and that he was standing along the edge of the highway as if waiting for a bus. When the truck was just about opposite to Tranotti he fell into the path of the front wheels. She testified that her husband applied the brakes and that he was sober.

The second occupant of the car, Morris Dolan, a steamfitter from Keyport, N. J., testified that he was not watching the road at the time of the accident but that he felt the truck come to a very sudden stop. Dolan

Hall Aluminum Aircraft Company Will Begin Work in About Five Weeks

WILL GIVE WORK TO 250

It is Estimated That About
One Year Will Be Required
To Complete the Ships

A Bristol aircraft firm has been awarded a contract to build six flying boats for the United States Coast Guard Service. The contract yesterday afternoon was awarded to the Hall Aluminum Aircraft Company. Announcement was made by the United States Treasury Department, in Washington.

The Hall Company's bid was $709,852 and calls for the construction of six huge boats having a cruising radius of 2,000 miles with a maximum speed of 152 miles per hour.

The Hall Company was the lowest responsible bidder.

The receipt of the contract will furnish work at the Hall plant here for 250 men, over a period of at least one year. Work will commence as soon as material is received at the local plant which should be in about five weeks.

The type of ship to be constructed will weigh 8½ tons with a wing spread of 73 feet and an overall length of 51 feet with a height of 19 feet. Each ship will be equipped with Wright Cyclone motors.

The ships will have an emergency carrying capacity of 25 passengers, with four bunks for bed patients. There will be equipment of extra gasoline tanks to enable the ships to make long flights in rescue work at sea.

In speaking of the contract today, Archibald M. Hall, vice-president of the company, said that he estimated it would take about one year to complete the construction of the boats.

Mr. Hall further stated that this particular design of flying boat with a number of improvements is the same as the boat that his company built for the U. S. Navy Department four years ago, at their Buffalo plant. They are now being used at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. They are constructed of aluminum alloy and are suitable for heavy sea duty.

This Strange New Deal

In 1933 the AAA destroyed 6,200,000 pigs and 220,000 prospective mother sows. The pork shortage resulting from this has caused an annual increase in pork imports.

In the 1st 7 months of 1934 we imported 834,000 lbs. of pork. In the same period in 1935 we imported 4,325,602 lbs. And in the 1st 7 months of 1936 pork imports have increased to 21,401,217 lbs.

THEY KNOW TOO MUCH

This business of searching out facts and arranging them so as to develop theories and conclusions from them; this business of science, in other words, has been a great benefit to mankind.

Sometimes, it seems, however, that the scientist goes a little too far in his zeal to carry the torch of reason into hitherto unexplored areas. There is a realm of familiar ideas and phenomena which, in the opinion of some persons, ought to be safeguarded against intrusions on the part of this relentless inquirer.

There is, for instance, a vast body of childhood legerdemain of a therapeutic nature—intricately devised remedies for nose bleeding, toe stubbing, wart removing, and things of that nature, which the scientist can never hope to approach with the respect to which such prescriptions are entitled in view of their ancient origin. These things do no harm, and they furnish infinite delight to the juvenile practitioner. If you have stubbed your toe, the pain is at once eased by rubbing the stalked toe with a small lump of cobwebs gathered in a barn and wadded up conveniently for the application. To stop nose-bleed you swing around your head a dead rat on a string securely tied to the tail of the deceased rodent.

Of such is the delightful medical folklore of childhood. But what chance does this folklore stand against the patient but relentless inquiries of a scientist?

EARLY REFLEXES

Some 30 years ago there were intelligent young mothers who let baby cry himself out after making sure there were no loose pins about. They did not know that they were collaborating with the great Russian physiologist Pavlov in establishing the truth of conditioned reflexes, but so it now appears.

To spoil a child is to endow it with conditioned reflexes, according to an address by a prominent medical man. The conditioning may begin at the early age of two weeks. "The infant cries and immediately afterward receives some treatment he enjoys, such as being taken up, being rocked, or being carried about. The infant memorizes a sequence of events. He learns to put forward the cry to earn its just and due payment."

If the Swedish authorities had begun by splitting the Noble Prize in medicine several ways, as they do now, Pavlov might have divided his Noble Prize with many thousand advanced young mothers just 30 years ago.

New Use For Dried Corn
Dried corn, soaked in milk, then cooked, makes delicious corn fritters. The fritters are better if the corn is soaked, then ground with the coarse knife of the meat grinder.

Delicious Carrots
Carrots cooked with the peeling on, then peeled and put through a ricer are delicious. Season with melted butter. Riced carrots make a beautiful border for a cauliflower.

Toasting Nuts
Nuts that are heated through before they are put in cakes, cookies and salads are far superior in flavor. Do not attempt to brown, just heat through. Salted almonds are fine on a fudge or butterscotch sundae.

Keeping Olives
When an entire bottle of olives is not used at one time, put two tablespoons of olive or vegetable oil in the bottle and there will not be the formation of the white scum, and the olives will keep fresh.

THE BIG FOUR by Agatha Christie

CHAPTER XXVI

"Dispose of them, did you say?" I asked feebly. "Single-handed."

"Oh, there is nothing very clever about that. If one is prepared in advance all is simple—the motto of the Boy Scout is it not? And a very fine one. Me, I was prepared. Not so long ago, I rendered a service to a very famous chemist, who did a lot of work in connection with poison gas during the war. He devised for me a little bomb—simple and easy to carry about—one has but to throw it and poof, the smoke—and then the unconsciousness. Immediately I blow a little whistle and straightway some of Japp's clever fellows who were watching the house here long before the boy arrived, and who managed to follow us all the way to Limehouse, came flying up and took charge of the situation."

"But, how was it you weren't unconscious too?"

"Another piece of luck. Our friend Number Four (who certainly composed that ingenious letter) permitted himself a little jest at my moustaches, which rendered it extremely easy for me to adjust my respirator under the guise of a yellow rubber."

"I remember," I cried eagerly, and then with the word "Remember" all the ghastly horror that I had temporarily forgotten came back to me. Cinderella.

I felt back a groan.

I must have lost consciousness again for a minute or two. I awoke to find Poirot forcing some brandy between my lips.

"What is it, mon ami? But what is it—then? Tell me." Word by word, as I did so, Poirot uttered a cry.

"My friend! My friend! But what you must have suffered! And I know nothing of all this! But reassure yourself! All is well!"

"You will find her, you mean? But she is in South America. And by the time we get there—long before, she will be dead—and Lord knows now and in what horrible way she will have died."

"No, no, you do not understand. She is safe and well. She has never been in their hands for one instant."

"But I got a cable from B. once."

"No, no, you did not. You may have got a cable from South America signed Bronsen—that is, a very different matter. Tell me, has it never occurred to you that an organization of this kind, with ramifications all over the world, might easily strike at us through that little girl, Cinderella, whom you love so well?"

"No, never," I replied.

"Well, it did to me. I said nothing to you because I did not want to upset you unnecessarily—but I took measures of my own. Your wife's letters all seem to have been written from the ranch, but in reality she has been in a place of safety, devised by me for over three months."

I looked at him for a long time.

well in the background. Presumably he was out of the danger zone of the gas bomb, and made good his escape by one of the many exits which we afterwards discovered.

From the four who remained in our hands we learnt nothing. The fullest investigation by the police failed to bring to light anything to connect them with the Big Four. They were ordinary low-class residents of the district, and they professed bland ignorance of the name Li Chang Yen. A Chinese gentleman had hired them for service in the house by the waterside, and they knew nothing whatever of his private affairs.

By the next day I had, except for a slight headache, completely recovered from the effect of Poirot's gas bomb. We went down together to Chinatown and searched the house from which I had been rescued. The premises consisted of two ramshackle houses joined together by an underground passage.

The ground floors and the upper stories of each were unfurnished and deserted, the broken windows covered by decaying shutters. Japp had already been prying about in the cellar, and had discovered the secret of the entrance to the subterranean chamber where I had spent such an unpleasant half-hour.

Closer investigation confirmed the impression that it had made on me the night before. The silks on the walls and the carpets on the floors were of exquisite workmanship. Although I know very little about Chinese art, I could appreciate that every article in the room was perfect of its kind.

With the aid of Japp and some of his men we conducted a most thorough search of the apartment. I had cherished high hopes that we would find documents of importance. A list, perhaps, of some of the more important agents of the Big Four, or cipher notes of some of their plans, but we discovered nothing of the kind. The only papers we found in the whole place were the notes which the Chinaman had consulted whilst he was dictating the letter to Poirot. These consisted of a very complete record of each of our careers, and estimate of our characters, and suggestions about the weaknesses through which we might best be attacked.

Poirot was most childishly delighted with this discovery. Personally I could not see that it was of any value whatever, especially as whoever compiled the notes was ludicrously mistaken in some of his opinions. I pointed this out to my friend when we were back in our rooms.

"My dear Poirot," I said, "you know now what the enemy thinks of us. He appears to have a grossly exaggerated idea of your brain power, and to have absurdly underrated mine, but I do not see how we are better off for knowing this."

Poirot chuckled in rather an offensive way.

"You do not see, Hastings, no! But surely now we can prepare ourselves for some of their methods of attack now that we are warned of some of our faults. For instance, my friend, we know that you should think before you act. Again, if you meet a red-haired young woman in trouble you should eye her—what you say—askance, is it not?"

His notes had contained some absurd references to my supposed impulsiveness, and had suggested that I was susceptible to the charms of young women with hair of a certain shade. I thought Poirot's reference to be in the worst of taste, but fortunately I was able to counter him.

"And what about you?" I demanded. "Are you going to try to cure your 'overweening vanity'?"

Your 'finicky tidiness'?"

I was quoting, and I could see that he was not pleased with my report.

"Oh, without doubt, Hastings, in some things they deceive themselves."

—better so! They will learn in due time. Meanwhile we have learnt something, and to know is to be prepared."

This last was a favorite axiom of his lately; so much so that I had begun to hate the sound of it.

"We know something, Hastings," he continued. "Yes, we know something—and that is to the good—but we do not know nearly enough. We must know more."

Poirot settled himself back in his chair, straightened a box of matches which I had thrown carelessly down on the table, and assumed an attitude that I knew only too well. I saw that he was prepared to hold forth at some length.

"See you, Hastings, we have to contend against four adversaries; that is, against four different personalities. With Number One we have never come into personal contact—we know him, as it were, only by the impress of his mind—and in passing, Hastings, I will tell you that I begin to understand that mind very well—a mind most subtle and Oriental—every scheme and plot that we have encountered have emanated from the brain of Li Chang Yen. Number Two and Number Three are so powerful, so high in their position, that they are for the present immune from our attacks. Nevertheless what is their safeguard is, by a perverse chance, our safeguard also. They are so movements in the limelight that their movements must be carefully ordered. And so we come to the last member of the gang—we come to the man known as Number Four."

Poirot's voice altered a little, as it always did when speaking of this particular individual.

"Number Two and Number Three are able to succeed, to go on their way unscathed, owing to their notoriety and their assured position. Number Four succeeds for the opposite reason—he succeeds by the way of obscurity. Who is he? Nobody knows. What does he look like? Again nobody knows. How many times have we seen him, you and I? Five times, is it not? And could either of us say truthfully that we could be sure of recognizing him again?"

I was forced to shake my head, as I ran back in my mind over those five different people who, incredible as it seemed, were one and the same man. The burly lunatic asylum keeper, the man in the buttoned up overcoat in Paris, James, the footman, the quiet young medical man in the Yellow Jasmine case, and the Russian Professor. In no way did any two of these people resemble each other.

"No," I said hopelessly. "We've nothing to go by whatsoever."

Poirot smiled.

"Do not, I pray of you, give way to such enthusiastic despair. We know one or two things."

"What kind of things?" I asked skeptically.

"We know that he is a man of medium height, and of medium or fair coloring. If he were a tall man of swarthy complexion, he could never have passed himself off as the fair stocky doctor. It is child's play, of course, to put on an additional inch or so for the part of James, or the Professor. In the same way he must have a short straight nose. Additions can be built on to a nose by skillful make-up, but a large nose cannot be successfully reduced at a moment's notice. Then again, he must be a fairly young man, certainly not over thirty-five. You see, we are getting somewhere. A man between thirty and thirty-five, of medium height and coloring, an adept in the art of make-up, and with very few if any teeth of his own."

"What?"

72 Paintings Entered, Morrisville Exhibit

dustrial Arts; Beatrice Edgerly and her husband, J. Havard Macpherson, Edith Green, Earl Donelson, Graham Holmes, Charles Ward, Jane A. Neill, Lytle K. Stryker and Marion Hankins and with etchings by George A. Bradshaw.

The show is hung on two floors. Downstairs the wide hall, drawing and dining rooms have been utilized, and upstairs the large room which was a ball room in Robert Morris' day and a smaller one adjoining, contain the exhibits. Although this gives more room for display, it has involved hanging some of the pictures in a light that makes it impossible to properly see them.

Among the paintings shown downstairs are two interesting ones by Mr. Macpherson and one by his wife, which were done last winter while they were in the Southwest. Earl Donelson has two chalk drawings, both Gothic figures, which are handicapped by bad lighting.

J. Gordon White, who has one of the finest canvases in the entire show, a snowscape, is also exhibiting his "Laughing Boy" in the hallway. Here, too, are some attractive flower paintings by Miss Rachel Carver.

The show includes only two works by Mr. MacGinnis, but both are striking. One is "Delphiniums," a study of a young girl in a white Summer dress standing amid a mass of blue delphiniums. Like most of Mr. MacGinnis' pictures of this type, "Delphiniums" is very appealing. It is in quite different manner from much of his former work. His other painting is "The Flood," a beautiful composition of water, trees and hills.

On one side of "Delphiniums" is Mr. White's snow scene, a painting of gaunt mountains covered with glistening snow against a frigid cold blue-green light.

At the opposite end of the hall room hang two canvases, "Pennsylvania Parlor" and "Kitchen Corner," which Beatrice Edgerly exhibited last winter at the Trenton High School and between them is "The End of the Trail," by Mr. Macpherson. Far more interesting are their paintings of the Southwest, particularly Mr. Macpherson's "Sentinels," "Foot Hills" and "Edge of the Desert," all so saturated with the atmosphere of New Mexico and Arizona.

Brilliant in color and interesting in treatment is Roy Kneeland's "Road's End," entirely different from his "Dutch Town" and "Early Morning."

Charles Ward is represented by his large painting "The Millwrights," a treatment of workers he so loves to do.

Mrs. Stryker, Trenton painter of children's portraits, is showing two small ones, "Olive," a merry little blonde girl and "Nathaniel," a very pleasing portrait of a little boy. Jane Neill has a realistic painting of Imlaytown, showing the familiar end in the only road running through this old town.

Etchings, pastels and water colors are hung in the second room upstairs. Here is Miss Edith Green's highly effective "Orientele," several of Bradshaw's best recent etchings, two vivid water colors by Ward and four surprising pastels of women by Marion Hankins. Beatrice Edgerly has one of her black and whites, a lovely design of poppies, and Alice Moore has a sketch of tulips.

what used to be one of the neat little inns run by the Spanish Tourist Agency. This was now still smoldering, completely burned out. On the left a house hit by one of the white shells was in crumpled ruins. The houses that hadn't been hit had all their doors and windows smashed with rifle bullets and the interiors plundered.

It is amazing how much waste paper comes out on the streets when a town had been through a lot of fighting like Santa Olalla and is finally abandoned by troops which loot it. You wade around literally ankle-deep in all kinds of truck, business papers, leaves from ledgers, old letters, receipts, pages from children's copy books, torn Bibles.

For a few days in a town like this which has been entirely deserted by its inhabitants no property has any owner and anybody can have what he wants to pick up. Soldiers wander around desultorily poking at the piles of junk, every now and then picking up a clock, looking at it, then dropping it. Others stroll through the smashed houses, seldom getting anything worthwhile because the Reds had the first choice and left mighty little.

In the main square every corner was jammed with garbage and we had no choice but to park beside a dead sheep. Then our little cinnamon bear chauffeur heard an air raid coming and while we were hunting cover he moved the car into an alley with just enough space in front for two American caterpillar trucks used for hauling big guns. The smell was terrific and when we went to the car for water we found we had parked right over a pile of dead chickens and a dead rabbit.

Exonerate Driver Of Blame in Man's Death

testified that Andrews was a very careful driver.

Andrews, the defendant and last witness to testify, said that he had stopped at Alexander's Service station to inquire for directions and that he had just got the truck back on the road and into high gear when Tranotti fell in the path of his truck. Andrews said that he saw the man and steered out so that all parts of his truck would miss him, but that as he approached Tranotti he fell headlong into the road and the path of the truck. "I was so close when he fell that there wasn't a thing I could do to stop from striking him," Andrews testified. Andrews, who is 36, said that he has been driving about 15 years. He also said that he was going at such a speed that he could have stopped the truck with the wheel resting on the victim.

When questioned about the fact that only one light was on after the accident Andrews said that the jar of the accident caused the other headlight to go out. When further questioned about a bottle that was found near the scene of the accident Andrews said he knew nothing about it. Patrolman Desch said that he discovered the bottle but could not tell what had been in it.

Tranotti, who was 78, resided in Bristol with his son on Jefferson avenue.

The jury men for the inquest at which Bucks County Coroner H. Clayton Moyer presided, were: Evan B. Vandegrift, foreman; Frank Londerbough, William J. Lefferts, Fred Leyden, Damon Jobson, and Howard P. Fennimore.

If this does not mean the attempted buying of votes, it certainly means the putting of public money where the votes are.

The relief billions entrusted to the New Deal have not taken the destitute out of their misery. They have not made normal jobs for workers.

A Farleyized political organization is the only thing the nation has to show for its money.

Governor Landon analyzes the situation bluntly:

"After three years it must be obvious to every one that waste and extravagance do not make jobs. Cracking down on business, and arousing class hatreds do not restore employment. Recovery and re-employment will

BRISTOL J. V.'S WALLOP PENNINGTON PREP. JR'S.

By Louis Tomlinson

PENNINGTON, Oct. 15—A gallant Bristol J. V. grid squad entered the lair of the Pennington Prep Junior Varsity eleven today, seeking revenge for a four-year old feud when Pennington defeated Bristol, 19-6. They received revenge—and how! When the slaughter finally ended, the Bunnies had thoroughly trounced and humbled a Red and Black crew before a meager home crowd, emerging much the better of the scrap, if we could call it such, for the ultimate score was 44-6, if you please, in our favor.

Pennington was again favored to win the fray due to the enormous advantage in weight and power. This meant nothing to the Bunnies, however, for they proceeded to bowl over their much heavier rivals like ten pins. They were very poorly coached, showing no speed, power, deception, or attack of any kind. They played like a bunch of kids in a pick-up game. They showed little knowledge of the game in blocking, tackling and leadership. Frequently a Red and Black back stumbled over his interference, blocked his own man or ran away from his interference.

The Bunnies, on the other hand, seemed to wade through the home-ster's line like wading through a brook. There was practically nothing there to stop them.

The Red and Black put on several drives in a vain effort to score, but were either stopped by the Bunnies, or they fumbled, had a pass intercepted, or were forced to kick. These drives accounted for their high total of first downs. One of their marches, however, netted them their only touchdown. In the meantime, though, Bristol had registered 38 points already so Pennington was still in the fog. The score came in the last period and was the result of a 78 yard sustained drive.

Collier kicked to the local 22 yard line. On two plays they had a first down to the 34 as the third period ended. They completed their best play of the game on the next play—a lateral forward pass which was completed to Bristol's 28 yard line, good for 38 yards. Ritchie, who completed the pass, galloped to the Bunnies' 20 for a third first down in a row. As a reward for his gallant work, Ritchie was removed from the game, and Pennington could get only 5 yards on the next three plays. But a penalty gave them their fourth first down on Bristol's five-yard line. From here Hanstein carried it over on the next play. The extra point failed.

That's how Pennington scored their six-pointer. Bristol had a little difficulty getting started, but once the machine was oiled up, it coasted along on free wheeling with high knee-action.

DiMido had to punt twice before they could run a play. On the second kick, Bristol recovered a fumble on Pennington's 43 yard line. They lost two yards on a fumble but recovered, then went to town. It was like rolling a truck down a hill; it wouldn't stop till it reached the bottom—neither did the Bunnies. Collier ripped off 12 yards, then 12 more for two consecutive first downs. Wollard made the third first down on Pennington's 23 yard line, and the fourth to the 11 yard line. Then two more short gains before Spencer took it over from the five yard line to break the ice. The extra point failed and Bristol led, 6-0.

Bristol kicked-off to Pennington but they couldn't get anywhere, so they kicked to the Bunnies 25 yard line. Danny DiMido then galloped 38 yards to the local 37 yard line. Then Sam Bragg raced to the 3 yard marker from the 35. On the next play DiMido made it 12-0, where it remained as the extra point failed. Bristol led, 18-0.

Shortly after this the Red and Black fumbled on their own 44 yard line, where a Bristol man recovered it. Three plays later the Cardinals added their third touchdown. Sanes lugged the oval to Pennington's 25, and O'Boyle took it over from there on the next play. For the third time the extra point failed. Bristol led, 18-0.

Pennington put on a drive of 55 yards to the Cardinals' 17. They started from their own 28 yard line on the kick-off and made 3 consecutive first downs. The drive ended when a Bristol back intercepted a pass on his own 15, just before the half ended.

In the third period our boys really did things up in fine style. Bacherof returned Pennington's kick-off 12 yards to his own 27 yard line. An exchange of punts followed in which Wollard returned the local 30 yard kick 38 yards to Pennington's 8 yard line, then scored from the 7 on the second play. Repetition followed again, when the Bunnies missed the try for extra point—so sacred in a close battle—for the fourth consecutive time. The score now stood: Bristol, 24; Pennington, 0.

An unusual situation led to the Cardinals next touchdown. Pennington put the ball in play on their own 20 yard line on a touchback on the kick-off. After losing a yard on each of two plays they decided to kick, and here's where a real break for the Bunnies occurred. Hanstein kicked one of those infrequent 100 yard kicks—50 up and 50 down. The ball bounced down on the 18 yard line and rolled to the three yard line. So without taking possession of the ball the Bunnies received it on their opponents 3-yard line. Danny DiMido crashed the line on the first play to make it 30-0. The Cardinals finally added an extra point when Spencer rushed it over to make the score, 31-0.

Pennington received and ran the kick-off back 13 yards to their 23, then proceeded to fumble and a Bristol man recovered on the 25. Nine yards were reeled off; followed by a 22 yard loss, then a 3 yard gain for a first down on the Red and Black 15 yard line. On the next play Pete DeLuca scored on a wide sweep around end. The extra point was added again, this time by Wollard on a pass. This gave Bristol a 38-0 lead to work on in the last period.

The home crew came back fighting and scored their only six-pointer in the last period, but this was nullified when the Cardinals added one of their own.

The Bunnies scored their last touchdown after Pennington made their first. Bacherof ran the kick-off from his 18 to his 36 yard line, then scampered 34 more yards to the Red and Black 30 yard line. Wollard took care of the scoring by crossing the goal line standing up following a 27 yard run. The try for extra point again failed and the score read, 44-6, which was the final tabulation.

Pennington opened her passing attack in a final effort. They completed one for 10 yards, and made two gains of 9 and 6 yards to put the ball in mid-field where it rested when the final whistle blew ending the game.

Both teams made 9 first downs, but if you were to count the 3-in-1 first downs the Bunnies made they would be far out in front, as they were in yards gained by rushing. Bristol had an even 300 yards to Pennington's 78. The Red and Black completed four of their ten passes for 62 yards while Bristol failed in their only two attempts. Pennington kicked 5 times for 100 yards, whereas the Cardinals made 156 yards on their four kicks. The home boys lost 14 yards by rushing and the visitors 15 in like manner.

Captain Carmen Mignoni, Danny DiMido, and Merle Bacherof were the outstanding cogs in the Bristol machine, while two chaps by the name of Ritchie and Strassberger stood out for the losers.

This was the first time in many a moon that a Bristol team rang up such a high score on the gridiron. Last year, though, the J. V.'s ran roughshod over Trenton Cathedral and crushed them, 40-0, for the most decisive victory ever earned by a Red and Gray squad.

As a token for winning the Bristol lads enjoyed a short dip in Pennington's swimming pool.

BILLY BONDAD MEETS HIS WATERLOO, CROYDON

Billy Boudah, of the Holland Club, a knockout artist with a devastating left, met his Waterloo last night in the second round of one of the feature bouts in the weekly amateur boxing show staged by the Daggert Club at the Croydon Arena. Billy's opponent, Henry Blackwell, of South Philadelphia, a miniature brown bomber, finished Boudah with a flurry of wicked rights to the jaw.

Blackwell, the underdog, knew entirely too much for the white boy, who was unable to land effectively with his best Sunday punch, a left upper cut to the body. In the first round the boys were content to feel one another out without doing much damage to each other. Coming out for the second round, Blackwell really went to town, slamming Boudah all over the ring before putting him down for the final count.

William Leighton, of Croydon, surprised everyone present with his fine showing against Albert Brown, the newly-crowned 126-pound Golden Glove champion. Leighton, who went in as a pinch-hitter at the last minute, gave a fine account of himself against the more experienced Brown, who captured the decision on points.

Frank Lamont, a fast two-fisted fighter from the East Side Club, defeated Samuel Terrell, a heavy hitting South Philadelphia Negro, in three rounds of the wind-up bout. Lamont, who carried the stronger punch, floored Terrell in the second round and had him down again when the bell ended the bout, cheating him out of a knockout verdict.

Freddie Schmidt, a good-looking 147-pound youngster who had appeared in only two bouts previous to last night, gave the fans a thrill when he completely knocked out Joe McCaffery, of Kensington, in the second round with a right to the jaw that sent McCaffery spinning across the ring on his face for the ten count. The referee could have counted for an hour over the prostrate Kensingtonian, so thoroughly did Schmidt do the job. A little more coaching by an experienced instructor should make Freddie a great prospect.

Albert Panchille of the Neighborhood Club lost in three hard rounds to the very clever Oscar Mackey, a rangy colored youth with a tantalizing left hand jab that almost slapped Panchille's head off. Charles Lang, Holland A. C., won the decision of the judges in a slam-bang affair over Robert Jackson, a member of the Arena Club.

"Tally" Sciarra of the St. Ann's Club made his debut after a long lay-off against George Gay and as usual "Tally" met a man who was entirely too clever for him and had too much experience. Tally, a tireless and fearless youngster, kept boxing in at all times, but Gay with a longer reach and a harder punch chopped up the St. Ann's boy at will, gaining an easy victory. It would be a break for Tally if the matchmaker could select some one whom the Bristol boy had a more even chance with. For the last six fights Tally has appeared in, around Bristol, he has been matched with boys with entirely too much experience.

Nathaniel Hines of the Arena Club and William Burton, East Side, a pair of light-heavyweights, put on a slam-bang bout for three rounds, with Hines winning the decision. Leo Neary, Kensington, defeated Angelo Ambrosano of Philadelphia in the opening bout of the evening in a fast exhibition of boxing.

The officials for the evening were: Referee, Edward Morris; judges, Daniel Madden and William Montgomery; timekeeper, Joseph Palermo; doctor, Frank De Dio.

Blanket Washing. When washing blankets in a machine, the best results come from handling one blanket at a time. Place blanket in a thick, sudsy W.A.R. water and wash for three minutes. If clean, remove. Blankets should be rinsed in plenty of luke warm water. Dry on a double line, being sure to hang straight. When dry, brush with a whisk broom and press the ribbon border.

FOUR NEW RESIDENTS IN ST. ANN'S LINEUP

Four youths who formerly made their home in Passaic but who now reside here, will be seen in action with St. Ann's A. A. eleven Sunday afternoon as the Purple and Gold eleven opens its home season by meeting the Dittman Green Jackets on Landreth Field.

The former Jersey players are: Ralph and Johnny Baker, Cy Kantor, and Teddy Van Housen. The Baker brothers were members of the squad last season and played in almost every game. Ralph is the older of the two and holds down a tackle position.

Johnny is a guard and is more of a regular this season than last. Kantor is trying to wrest the center post from Kenny Dyer and Rocco Accardi. He played against the Mayfair team and was a bit erratic. However, during the practice session he is improving steadily and is due for plenty of action before the year is out. VanHousen is a 175-pound tackle, and played in both of the St. Ann's tilts this season.

The largest crowd of the season is expected to turn out to see the deceptive power of the eleven as taught by Coach "Bill" Dougherty. Nearly all of the Saint's scoring power is with plenty of deception as the team is light and does not have very much weight to pound heavy lines of opposing teams. Coach Dougherty has also instilled a strong aerial attack and this led to the St. Ann's scores against Mayfair.

Tony Angelo, guard of last season, returned to the squad last night and in his workout looked in fine shape. He is expected to strengthen the squad considerably as he scales about 165 pounds.

Several players suffered minor injuries in the tilt against Mount Holly, but all of these with the exception of Tommy Liberty are expected to see action against the Dittman Club, which is made up of mostly graduates from the Frankford High School and has many players who formerly played with the Frankford Alumni Club, a team which handled St. Ann's a 19-0 lacing last season.

BRISTOL J. V.'S WALLOP PENNINGTON PREP. JRS.

By Louis Tomlinson

PENNINGTON, Oct. 15—A gallant Bristol J. V. grid squad entered the fair of the Pennington Prep Junior Varsity eleven today, seeking revenge for a four-year old feud when Pennington defeated Bristol, 19-6. They received revenge—and how! When the slaughter finally ended, the Bunnies had thoroughly trounced and humbled a Red and Black crew before a meager home crowd, emerging much the better of the scrap, if we could call it such, for the ultimate score was 44-6, if you please, in our favor.

Pennington was again favored to win the fray due to the enormous advantage in weight and power. This meant nothing to the Bunnies, however, for they proceeded to bowl over their much heavier rivals like ten pins. They were very poorly coached, showing no speed, power, deception, or attack of any kind. They played like a bunch of kids in a pick-up game. They showed little knowledge of the game in blocking, tackling and leadership. Frequently a Red and Black back stumbled over his interference, blocked his own man or ran away from his interference.

The Bunnies, on the other hand, seemed to wade through the home-esters' line like wading through a brook. There was practically nothing there to stop them.

The Red and Black put on several drives in a vain effort to score, but were either stopped by the Bunnies, or they fumbled, had a pass intercepted, or were forced to kick. These drives accounted for their high total of first downs. One of their marches, however, netted them their only touchdown. In the meantime, though, Bristol had registered 38 points already so Pennington was still in the fog. The score came in the last period and was the result of a 78 yard sustained drive.

Collier kicked to the local 22 yard line. On two plays they had a first down to the 34 as the third period ended. They completed their best play of the game on the next play—a lateral forward pass which was completed to Bristol's 28 yard line, good for 38 yards. Ritchie, who completed the pass, galloped to the Bunnies' 20 for a third first down in a row. As a reward for his gallant work, Ritchie was removed from the game, and Pennington could get only 5 yards on the next three plays. But a penalty gave them their fourth first down on Bristol's five-yard line. From here Hanstein carried it over on the next play. The extra point failed.

That's how Pennington scored their six-pointer. Bristol had a little difficulty getting started, but once the machine was oiled up, it coasted along on free wheeling with high knee-action.

DiMidio had to punt twice before they could run a play. On the second kick, Bristol recovered a fumble on Pennington's 43 yard line. They lost two yards on a fumble but recovered, then went to town. It was like rolling a truck down a hill; it wouldn't stop till it reached the bottom—neither did the Bunnies. Collier ripped off 12 yards, then 12 more for two consecutive first downs. Wollard made the third first down on Pennington's 23 yard line, and the fourth to the 11 yard line. Then two more short gains before Spencer took it over from the five yard line to break the ice. The extra point failed and Bristol led, 6-0.

Bristol kicked-off to Pennington but they couldn't get anywhere, so they kicked to the Bunnies 25 yard line. Danny DiMidio then galloped 38 yards to the local 27 yard line. Then Sam Bragg raced to the 3 yard marker from the 35. On the next play DiMidio made it 12-0, where it remained as the extra point try again failed.

Shortly after this the Red and Black fumbled on their own 44 yard line, where a Bristol man recovered it. Three plays later the Cardinals added their third touchdown. Sanes lugged the oval to Pennington's 25, and O'Boyle took it over from there on the next play. For the third time the extra point failed. Bristol led, 18-0.

Pennington put on a drive of 55 yards to the Cardinals' 17. They started from their own 28 yard line on the kick-off and made 3 consecutive first downs. The drive ended when a Bristol back intercepted a pass on his own 15, just before the half ended.

In the third period our boys really did things up in fine style. Bachofer returned Pennington's kick-off 12 yards to his own 27 yard line. An exchange of punts followed in which Wollard returned the local 30 yard kick 38 yards to Pennington's 8 yard line, then scored from the 7 on the second play. Repetition followed again, when the Bunnies missed the try for extra point—so sacred in a close battle—for the fourth consecutive time. The score now stood: Bristol, 24; Pennington, 0.

An unusual situation led to the Cardinals next touchdown. Pennington put the ball in play on their own 20 yard line on a touchback on the kick-off. After losing a yard on each of two plays they decided to kick, and here's where a real break for the Bunnies occurred. Hanstein kicked one of those infrequent 100 yard kicks—50 up and 50 down. The ball bounced down on the 18 yard line and rolled to the three yard line. So without taking possession of the ball the Bunnies received it on their opponents 3-yard line. Danny DiMidio crashed the line on the first play to make it 30-0. The Cardinals finally added an extra point when Spencer rushed it over to make the score, 31-0.

Pennington received and ran the kick-off back 13 yards to their 23, then proceeded to fumble and a Bristol man recovered on the 25. Nine yards were reeled off, followed by a 22 yard loss, then a 3 yard gain for a first down on the Red and Black 15 yard line. On the next play Pete DeLuca scored on a wide sweep around end. The extra point was added again, this time by Wollard on a pass. This gave Bristol a 38-0 lead to work on in the last period.

The home crew came back fighting and scored their only six-pointer in the last period, but this was nullified when the Cardinals added one of their own.

The Bunnies scored their last touchdown after Pennington made their first. Bachofer ran the kick-off from his 18 to his 36 yard line, then scampered 34 more yards to the Red and Black 30 yard line. Wollard took care of the scoring by crossing the goal line standing up following a 27 yard run. The try for extra point again failed and the score read, 44-6, which was the final tabulation.

Pennington opened her passing attack in a final effort. They completed one for 19 yards, and made two gains of 9 and 6 yards to put the ball in mid-field where it rested when the final whistle blew ending the game.

Both teams made 9 first downs, but if you were to count the 3-in-1 first downs the Bunnies made they would be far out in front, as they were in yards gained by rushing. Bristol had an even 300 yards to Pennington's 78. The Red and Black completed four of their ten passes for 62 yards while Bristol failed in their only two attempts. Pennington kicked 5 times for 100 yards, whereas the Cardinals made 155 yards on their four kicks. The home boys lost 14 yards by rushing and the visitors 15 in like manner.

Captain Carmen Mignoni, Danny DiMidio, and Merle Bachofer were the outstanding cogs in the Bristol machine, while two chaps by the name of Ritchie and Strassberger stood out for the losers.

This was the first time in many a moon that a Bristol team rang up such a high score on the gridiron. Last year, though, the J. V.'s ran roughshod over Trenton Cathedral and crushed them, 40-0, for the most decisive victory ever earned by a Red and Gray squad.

As a token for winning the Bristol lads enjoyed a short dip in Pennington's swimming pool.

BILLY BONDAL MEETS HIS WATERLOO, CROYDON

Billy Bondal, of the Holland Club, a knockout artist with a devastating left, met his Waterloo last night in the second round of one of the feature bouts in the weekly amateur boxing show staged by the Dargert Club at the Croydon Arena. Billy's opponent, Henry Blackwell, of South Philadelphia, a miniature brown bomber, finished Bondal with a flurry of wicked rights to the jaw.

Blackwell, the underdog, knew entirely too much for the white boy, who was unable to land effectively with his best Sunday punch, a left upper cut to the body. In the first round the boys were content to feel one another out without doing much damage to each other. Coming out for the second round, Blackwell really went to town, slamming Bondal all over the ring before putting him down for the final count.

William Leighton, of Croydon, surprised everyone present with his fine showing against Albert Brown, the newly-crowned 126-pound Golden Glove champion. Leighton, who went in as a pinch-hitter at the last minute, gave a fine account of himself against the more experienced Brown, who captured the decision on points.

Frank Lamont, a fast two-fisted fighter from the East Side Club, defeated Samuel Terrell, a heavy hitting South Philadelphia Negro, in three rounds of the wind-up bout. Lamont, who carried the stronger punch, floored Terrell in the second round and had him down again when the bell ended the bout, cheating him out of a knockout verdict.

Freddie Schmidt, a good-looking 147-pound youngster who had appeared in only two bouts previous to last night, gave the fans a thrill when he completely knocked out Joe McCaffery, of Kensington, in the second round with a right to the jaw that sent McCaffery spinning across the ring on his face for the ten count. The referee could have counted for an hour over the prostrate Kensingtonian, so thoroughly did Schmidt do the job. A little more coaching by an experienced instructor should make Freddie a great prospect.

Albert Panchillo of the Neighborhood Club lost in three hard rounds to the very clever Oscar Mackey, a rangy colored youth with a tantalizing left hand jab that almost slapped Panchillo's head off. Charles Lanz, Holland A. C., won the decision of the judges in a slam-bang affair over Robert Jackson, a member of the Arena Club.

"Tally" Sciarra of the St. Ann's Club made his debut after a long lay-off against George Gay and as usual "Tally" met a man who was entirely too clever for him and had too much experience. Tally, a tireless and fearless youngster, kept boxing in at all times, but Gay with a longer reach and a harder punch chopped up the St. Ann's boy at will, gaining an easy victory. It would be a break for Tally if the matchmaker could select some one whom the Bristol boy had a more even chance with. For the last six fights Tally has appeared in, around Bristol, he has been matched with boys with entirely too much experience.

Nathaniel Hines of the Arena Club and William Burton, East Side, a pair of light-heavyweights, put on a slam-bang bout for three rounds, with Hines winning the decision. Leo Neary, Kensington, defeated Angelo Ambrosano of Philadelphia in the opening bout of the evening in a fast exhibition of boxing.

The officials for the evening were: Referee, Edward Morris; judges, Daniel Madden and William Montgomery; timekeeper, Joseph Palermo; doctor, Frank De Dio.

Blanket Washing

When washing blankets in a machine, the best results come from handling one blanket at a time. Place blanket in a thick, sudsy water and wash for three minutes. If clean, remove. Blankets should be rinsed in plenty of luke warm water. Dry on a double line, being sure to hang straight. When dry, brush with a whisk broom and press the ribbon border.

FOUR NEW RESIDENTS IN ST. ANN'S LINEUP

Four youths who formerly made their home in Passaic but who now reside here, will be seen in action with the St. Ann's A. A. eleven Sunday afternoon as the Purple and Gold eleven opens its home season by meeting the Dittman Green Jackets on Landreth Field.

The former Jersey players are: Ralph and Johnny Baker, Cy Kanter, and Teddy Van Housen. The Baker brothers were members of the squad last season and played in almost every game. Ralph is the older of the two and holds down a tackle position. Johnny is a guard and is more of a regular this season than last. Kanter is trying to wrest the center post from Kenny Dyer and Rocco Accardi. He played against the Mayfair team and was a bit erratic. However, during the practice session he is improving steadily and is due for plenty of action before the year is out. Van Housen is a 175-pound tackle, and played in both of the St. Ann's tilts this season.

The largest crowd of the season is expected to turn out to see the deceptive power of the eleven as taught by Coach "Bill" Dougherty. Nearly all of the Saint's scoring power is with plenty of deception as the team is light and does not have very much weight to pound heavy lines of opposing teams. Coach Dougherty has also instilled a strong aerial attack and this led to the St. Ann's scores against Mayfair.

Tony Angelo, guard of last season, returned to the squad last night and in his workout looked in fine shape. He is expected to strengthen the squad considerably as he scales about 165 pounds.

Several players suffered minor injuries in the tilt against Mount Holly, but all of these with the exception of Tommy Liberty are expected to see action against the Dittman Club, which is made up of mostly graduates from the Frankford High School and has many players who formerly played with the Frankford Alumni Club, a team which handed St. Ann's a 19-0 lacing last season.
